LIBERAL SELLING CAUSED A WEAK CHICAGO MARKET SATURDAY.

Other Grain Was Fairly Firm, Whil in Provisions Pork Was Heavy and Lard Steady.

CHICAGO, May 2,-Liberal liquidations to day, with bearish weather from whea States, caused a further decline in whea July closed at 62c, or %c below yesterda; Corn and oats closed fairly firm, after ear Weakness. Pork was heavy; lard and rit Stready.

There was a good trade and fairly active wheat market, values having a 1c range. There was rather more outside trade, chiefly on Eastern account, and the feeling developed weaker, and still lower prices were es-"ablished, July selling off to 61%c and September to 62%c. There was further liquidation, a good deal of July coming on the market, part of which looked like New York selling, houses with Eastern connections being active on that side of the market. The news at hand was considered bearish, and the market evidently still feit die effect on May liquidation. Chief among the bear influences presented was the better weather conditions in the Northwest, being generally clear and warm in that section, and then cables came weak. Liverpool showing a decline of 1/20%d on futures. There was a fair trade in corn early, with less doing later, the range for the day being but 160 4c. The feeling developed was a continuation of that manifested toward the close of yesterday, and slightly lower prices were scored, the close showing about 4c de-The further decline in wheat, good weather, continued liquidation and fair re-early, on stop-loss selling, which made the opening heavy, and 1464 to below yesterday's close. Prices receded 1464 to more before the rush of selling subsided. Then the buying increased, and offerings were found to be small. Prices advanced 120%c and closed at nearly the top, with a net gain of 1/8c on May and July, but at 1/30 loss on September. In the speculative provision market pork was heavy and low, without any one appearing to be interested in maintaining its value. It was different with lard and ribs, both receiving the support of the packers. Pork, compared with yesterday's closing prices, left off with a decline of 7%c in the July fu-ture and 10c in September. Lard in the end showed no change, and ribs made a gain of Trade Last Week More Satisfactory, Changes in Values Few.

It would probably be no exaggeration to say that trade on the wholesale streets and on Commission row in the week ending May 2 was more satisfactory than any preceding week since the holidays. Strawberries, new potatoes, new cabbage and other garden truck is being handled in considerable quantity, and the coming week a further improvement is looked for. On the wholesale streets the grocers had a fairly busy week, and the dry goods houses did a satisfactory business. The poultry, egg now being repaired. and butter-packing houses are unusually busy. Prices have varied but a little in any line. Sugar advanced during the week, poultry was 1/1c higher at the close than early in the week and provisions are moving well, but at low prices. The flour market is dull. Hay is active, with baled hay higher than a week ago. In dry goods, leather and drugs the week showed no changes. The seed market is less active at E. E. Matthews, stable, 153 Har celpts increased. In bids on track there was but little change, fluctuations in wheat be-ing the most numerous. Corn and outs rule steady. Track bids yesterday were as fol-

> United States Laws Being Violated by Jackson Hill Coal Company -Other State News.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. GREENFIELD, Ind., May 2.-Aaron G. Campfield, of Richmond, has filed a suit against County Commissioners Benjamin Wilson, Aquilla Grist and William M. Thomas, asking for a writ of mandate which will compel them to set aside the present "pretended" courthouse contract with Geake, Henry & Co., of Fort Wayne, and contract with him. The case is brought in the name of the State. His attorneys are R. A. Black and Downing & Hough. The commissioners will be represented by County Attorney E. W. Felt and Marsh & Cook. Mr. Campfield avers that his bid was the lowest and best; was accompanied by a good and sufficient bond, and that he was and now is prepared to enter into a contract for the performance of the work according to the plans and specifications and to complete it on time. He further alleges that the contract with another firm." NO CHANGE IN JACKSON HILL. rawford Fairbanks's Coal Company Issues Checks for Money.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. TERRE HAUTE, Ind., May 2.-William W. Baders, a merchant of Jackson Hill, Sullivan county, was before United States Commissioner Williams yesterday to complain of the use of substitute money by the Jackwas in such general circulation that it comin exchange for goods. If cashed they are redeemed at 10 per cent. discount. The farmers who receive them in exchange for their produce cash them at a discount that they night do their own buying at other stores The Jackson Hill evil is said to be more pronounced than at Linton, where several arrests were made by the United States marshal. President Purcell, of the United Mine Workers, tells of his experience in Jackson Hill, where he stopped over night at the hotel. His bill was $1.25 and he had but a dollar in denominations less than $5. He offered the $5 to the landlord, who said he had no change and didn't believe he could get it changed. He went to the company store to get the change and could not. No doubt there was plenty of money in the store, of large denominations, but the clerks could not change $5. All the smaller circulating medium is in the checks and coupons issued by the operators. The miners are paid in cash every two weeks, but the money disappears immediately after it is spent and the checks issued as orders on the store by the operators pending the next pay day immediately take the place of the money of Uncle Sam. The Jackson Hill Coal Company's stock is owned in Chicago and here. Crawford Fairbanks, the brewery boss, is the controlling stockholder and Jacob Kolsam, his president of the Terre Haute board of police commissioners, is manager of the Special to the Indianapolis Journal. TERRE HAUTE, Ind., May 2.-Mr. George W. Bement, senior member of the wholesale grocery firm of Bement & Shea, to-day sent to the County Commissioners a petition for the return to him of $3,000 of the amount of taxes he was compelled to pay on prop-erty that had not been assessed. The property was placed on the tax list through the efforts of Liehr, the Fort Wayne "tax ferret," who has a contract with the city and county by which he receives a per cent. on all taxes thus collected. Mr. Bement paid in all about $4,000 and he says in his petition that he is willing that Liehr shall have his per cent. He also says that unless the money is returned to him that he wil leave the community where he has lived for fifty years and where he has paid, in all, $175,000 in taxes. Mr. Bement is very wealthy and is one of Terre Haute's bestknown citizens. He claimed that the property on which he was compelled to pay taxes was located in Evansville and that he thought it had been taxed there.

HEALTH OF THE GERMAN CHANCEL-LOR IS SAID TO BE SHATTERED.

Reform of the Military Tribunals Is Also Troubling Him, and He and the War Minister May Resign.

(Copyright, 1896, by the Associated Press.) BERLIN, May 2.-Rumors of another Cabinet crisis have been current throughout the week, and some of the newspapers have even gone to the extent of predicting the resignation of the Imperial Chancellor, Prince Hohenlohe, and the Minister of War, General Von Schellendorf, immediately on the return of the Emperor to this city. The cause of the conflict is said to be the proposed reform of the military tribunals. According to information obtained from inner circles, the following is the position: The military court procedure is antiquated, dating from 1848, and is full of abuses. Under it publicity is rigorously refused, and trials are only conducted in public in the case of the Bavarian army. General Spitz, who is looked on as likely to be appointed president of the imperial court-martial drafted a bill to remedy these defects, and the measure outlined was approved by the Cabinet and the Bundezrath. The bill is now before the Emperor, who, so far, has not come to a decision regarding it. The King of Saxony, whose counsel is greatly valued by the Emperor, opposes the bill, and so does General Von Hahnke, chief of the Military Cabinet, and Lieutenant General Von Plossen, who is the Emperor's favorite aid-de-camp, In spite of this opposition, it is believed to be likely that the Emperor will approve the bill. He is, however, greatly annoyed at the press campaign on the subject, which is looked on as intended to put him at variance with the Cabinet, and the more so, because he half believes that the projected reform will weaken the discipline of the army.

It is an undoubted fact that Prince Hohenlohe's health is shattered He cannot attend to his duties in the Reichstag and Bundesrath, and his resignation of the office of Chancellor cannot be far distant. But the Emperor is unable as yet to decide on his successor. Count Philip Von Eulenburg, General Von Waldersee and General Von Alvensleben are mentioned as Prince Hohenlohe's possible successor. The last two named are committed to military re-The Emperor and Empress, after attending the Frankfort and Berlin peace jubilees, propose to visit Duke Ernest Gunther, of Schleswig-Holstein, brother of the Empress, at his estate, the Chateau of Prunkenau, in Silesia. This event will publicly mark the complete reconciliation of their Majesties with the Duke, who has been in disgrace for over a year past. His Majesty will afterward make another trip to the Davenport, Ia..... 56 Northern sea.

In consequence of persistent reports of the discovery of valuable gold, copper and coal fields in the northern part of German East Africa, an expedition has been fitted out to proceed to that part of the world and thoroughly explore the region where the dis-coveries are said to have been made. The expedition will be absent eighteen months. Prince Ferdinand of Bulgaria will reside t the Schloss during his stay in this city. He is being shown the usual attentions.

The forty-eighth birthday of the mad King Otto of Bavaria was officially celebrated by the court at Munich on Monday. The King is thinner and has become quiet and tractable, but is quite impassive to his surround-King think he may live to an old age, unless a blood vessel in the brain should suddenly burst. The idea to formally declare King Otto's reign closed and crown Prince Luitpold, the regent, as King of Bavaria, has again been abandoned on the advice of the Emperor and the Kings of Saxony and Wur-

General Count Von Caprivi, the ex-Chancellor, came to Berlin this week, bronzed ike a country squire. He has grown a full a heavy cane. He made no visits and none was paid to him. The old report that M. Herbette, the French embassador to Germany, is to be recalled is again revived.

Dr. Langheld, the discoverer of the new remedy (antimicrobin) for killing consumption germs, is soon to publish a his tory of his discovery and details of his treatment. Dr. Langheld's preparation retains ozone unchanged after a long exposure to air, and the ozone is introduced into the blood and exercises a strong antimicrobic influence. He has treated successfully several advanced cases of consumpthe Charity Hospital. Dr. Langheld is the son of the chief naval chaplain at Kiel. He is not quite thirty years old, and has traveled in east Africa, Brazil and Venezuela for several years, studying many interesting features of his profession. Many German physicians are skeptical as to the efficacy of antimicrobin, and others warmly praise Dr. Langheld and are trying to interest the government in the discovery. The audience of Mr. Edwin Uhl, the United States embassador to Germany, with Emperor William which was postponed, owing to the arrival here of Prince Ferdiand of Bulgaria, is now fixed for 3 o'clock to-morrow afternoon, at the Schloss. Mr. Uhl will be accompanied by the United States charge d'affaires, Mr. John B. Jackson, bearing the new American embassador's credentials, and by Capt. R. K. Evans, the military attache of the United States embassy, and by Mr. Herbert Squires, second secretary of the United States embassy.

Count Posadowski, Secretary of the Imperial Treasury announced in the Reichstag today that the government did not intend to propose a conversion of the German imperial loans during this session, as the conversion would lead to a good deal of German money going abroad, to be replaced by doubtful foreign paper.

Emperor William on Saturday attended the festival of the Berlin Academy of Arts, in commemoration of the two hundredth anniversary of its foundation. After expressing others, arrive Lake Maxinkuckee at 1:30 p. pleasure at being able to receive the loyal his Majesty said: "This day my heart is noved by a feeling of deep thankfulness to the lake. Returning, special train will leave King Frederick I of Prussia, the founder of the academy, and towards his successors, who fully recognized the ennobling influences of art over the minds of the and with the keen interest and protecting hand which prepared or paved the way even in times of sorrow and tribulation for the prosperous develop ment and cultivation of national art. That the latter has attained its present high position is in no small degree due to the faithfu work of the academy, for which I express deep thanks." Continuing, his Majesty expressed confidence that the artists of the present day will uphold the ideals of the past, and assured them that they could thus lepend upon his protection and good will, The Emperor concluded with hoping that the fine arts would increase and flourish as one of the richest blessings of the Fatherland.

DRIFTED 4,000 MILES. The Long Voyage of a Railroad

Barge on the Pacific Ocean. San Francisco Chronicle. On one of the coral reefs off the Marshall group, far away in the south Pacific, there rests a large railway transfer barge, which was carried by winds and currents from some point on the California coast to its present resting place. Its ownership, home port and the date of its loss are unknown, but there it is, and it drifted from some point on the California coast. John Crowey, mate of the missionary brig Morning Star, who arrived here from H the Australia on a vacation trip, saw the barge, and gives the proofs of its identity as far as it can be traced. Speaking about the barge yesterday Crowley said: "We ran into the Marshall group in Sep-tember last in the course of our regular tour through the islands of the Morning Star, and our attention was attracted to this huge barge resting on a reef, where the sea had cast it. Its very presence was unusual in that far-away clime, and our cuword 'Transfer,' and the abbreviation 'Cal.' been obliterated, but enough remained to and a couple of big cranes still intact and very well preserved. The barge itself was pretty badly weather beaten, and showed the marks of many a storm, but it was still in very good condition. It was about 150 feet long, built of heavy timbers securely fastened together, and was able to resist the power of the sea in its long drift. The bottom had been copper covered, but the natives stripped that off. They had made an attempt to break the craft up, too, but that was beyond their power, as they

The thing has interested me greatly, and I have tried since I came to trace the ownership of the barge, but have not been successful. I do not believe that it was lost from this harbor, as it would be practically impossible for such a craft to get out of the bay and straits undetected. I am inclined to the opinion that it was carried from somewhere on the lower coast, perhaps from San Pedro or San Diego, and I am in hopes that the publication of its discovery may lead to Inquiry among shipping men as to the identity of the strange craft seen by the crew of the Morning Star failed to throw any light upon the subject. There is no record of the loss of any such barge from this port, and the general impression among those spoken to about it was that it was probably swept away from one of the lower coast ports by a storm, and carried out to sea, to be guided by wind and sea to the Marshalls. The opinion was expressed that possibly at the time It was lost the owners believed that it had The trip of the barge is interesting in an-other direction besides arousing simple cuing made the subject of scientific study, and the drifting barge adds fresh data to that al-

CAPERS OF A MONKEY. Mischievous Little Beast That Few People Would Tolerate.

"Bhunder," the Capuchin monkey which we keep chained to a running ring under the evergreen tree (Ficus nitida) which shades our front door, is fond of a small crab now and then. He has a salutary respect for the claws of the smallest; and a large one he will not face at all. His method with one of suitable size is to knock it about with his paw by quick pats until it is sufficiently dazed to give him a chance of smashing its claw with a large stone. Once he has succeeded in that, he knows his victim is defenseless, and tears it to pieces and devours It at his leisure. He is a cruel little beast, just like a boy of limited intelligence and bad heredity. Once a poor little green paroquet, which lived in the veranda and was perfectly tame, was foolish enough to pay im a visit. He carefully plucked her, and then drowned the unfortunate bird in the water pot, after which his mistress declined to speak to him for several days. His great friend is 'Cox.' the kitten-indeed, the affeccharacter. He will not give her a morsel of his food, even when he can eat no more himself, but confines himself to seizing her whenever she comes near him, taking a turn of her tall round his neck, and upsetting her by catching her foreleg on the far side and drawing it under her body. Then he rolls her about on the ground and teases her, till she tries to retaliate by scratching him, when he gets hold of all her four paws and holds her down firmly. "Bhunder's good time comes when the rain and the latter has caked in the swivel of his chain and clogged it so that it will not turn,

He knows by experience that he has now only to catch the chain over a branch and twist till it breaks. Meanwhile, he has been studying a scheme of mischief. He generally begins by entering the dining room through the open windows and mixing oil, vinegar, salt, mustard, hot sauces and pepper in an awful mess upon the table cloth. He can open any box so long as the fastening is not beyond his strength. It is never beyond his ntellect. Driven from the dining room by other pets, pull out the macaws' tail feathers, upset their drinking water, tear off the ibiscus flowers and eat the gardenia blossoms and generally enjoy himself. When tired of mischief he commonly walks in and surrenders himself with a grin, knowing that when the butler brings in afternoon tea, he has a standing order to release Bhunder, who rushes into the house and upstairs to get his share. He does not try to run wild on these occasions, well knowing that, with two or three yards of chain attached to him, he would be an easy prey. When we wish to tease him we give him a tin money box with a few pence in it. He can see the money through the slit, but neither shaking nor hanging on the door will extract it. He can never resist trying the experiment, and get angry when laughed at."
